

Grief

Martha Haskins Hume*

Grief crawls on padded
elbows, crooking
the space of absence
in hollow arms.
The black cowl
hovers, empties
into air — a mask
to lisp the silences
of the heart.

*Dr. Hume is assistant professor of English at Radford College, Radford, Va.
Her poetry has been published widely.
